Unfortunately, your editor received these new memberships too late to request photographs and information from them for this issue. We hope to have this information for the September-October issue.

WELCOME TO THE SCOTTSDALE CORVETTE CLUB!

Our Governor, Ed Luse, received the following email from Bob Johnson of Sonoran Desert Corvettes Tucson (SDCT):

Please send this to your membership:

SDCT will be sponsoring an NCCC Sanctioned Event on September 17-18th. This will be our 1st Trivia Run. The registration form and information is included on the attachment below. I will be providing hints over the next few months as to what information might be included in the trivia questions. Here is your 1st hint. Who are the presidents for each of the clubs in the Roadrunner Region? See the attachment for a list of club websites.

Thanks,
Bob Johnson

Ed. Note: The attachment referred to above is attached to the email sending you this newsletter.

We are amidst a Scottsdale summer. Although many of us leave the Valley for cooler places, for those who are staying, your Club still has events happening through July and August. Look at SignUpGenius <https://www.signupgenius.com/tabs/13576DBOFA5CFE8C7AB2-allactivities> and our 2021 calendar to see what is happening.

Looking back one year, we are now in a wonderfully different space. Gone are the masks and most of the fear that came along with them. People are ready to get out and socialize. Your Club has weathered Covid and is moving forward with a new dinner meeting location at Ancala Country Club. Our inaugural in-person meeting will be held September 8th at 6:00 P.M., and it will be a fun-packed event. This is one meeting you will not want to miss. Get ready to Laugh Out Loud.

Your Board wants to make sure your Corvette Club experience is entertaining and educational. We are making an extra effort to bring more relevant programming to every Dinner Meeting. I guarantee you will enjoy and appreciate the programs planned for the rest of the year. Please come to the Dinner Meetings. You will be glad you did.

When we get back together, you will notice several new members. Please introduce yourself and make them feel at home. New members bring many talents to the Club. Our Club is regarded as the premium Corvette club in the Valley. By bringing in fresh talent and ideas we assure the Club will endure.

It has been my pleasure to guide us during the pandemic. I hope you liked the Zoom meetings as much as I did. Here's to a brighter future.

FROM THE EDITOR'S DESK

By Dorinne Dobson

Summer has arrived and for those of us still here in Arizona, it's a time when we're thinking about heading north even if just for a few days of relief from the summer heat.

We've had some interesting mini activities in the past several months, most of which have been photographed and written up in the newsletter.

At the event at the Detroit Coney Grill a couple of weeks ago, we met several couples who are prospective members, including two couples who have joined the Club, as you will note in this newsletter: Rob and Rhonda Deacon and Howard and Sheryl Katz. Unfortunately, I did not receive notification of their memberships in time to request photos and stories on their Corvette interests, so you can look forward to seeing and reading about these folks in the next issue.

I don't know about you, but I am really looking forward to our September membership meeting - our first in-person meeting in a year and a half - a very long year and a half from my perspective! Here's hoping we have a great turnout for this meeting. I'm looking forward to seeing everyone again, as I am sure we all are.

As always, I want to thank all of you who have contributed photographs, articles, matters of interest to Corvette enthusiasts like us, and ideas to make this issue of our Club newsletter the best it can be!

Until the next issue, Save the Wave!

MINI ACTIVITIES

Octane Raceway and Dinner at Famous 48

Story by Mark Chulew

Imagine a booming PA system.... SUNDAY.... FUNNY CARS.... UNION GROVE DRAG STRIP. Well, not exactly, but Octane Raceway is a hoot. These electric Go-carts reach speeds up to 45 mph. In all, seven SCC Members challenged themselves to deliver the lowest time around the track. Only one would be Champion. But I get ahead of myself.

Sunday, June 13, at 3:00 p.m., eight Members met at Octane Raceway. They were Al Banen and Marsha Cohen, Wesley Trussell and Lisa Mayberry, Ken and Jean Mitchell, Walter Juessen and Mark Chulew. Jean was in the cheering section. After a brief signup procedure, we headed to the indoor/outdoor track where we were given a head sock and told to hangout while they cleared the backlog of racers. While waiting, Walter and I went to the bar. Of course, we went to the bar. A lot of strategy was discussed, and there was a suggestion of a handicap for those with more mass than others. No names will be mentioned. This is the e-mail I received Monday morning (name deleted):

HOWDY- nice day yesterday - in case you plan to inform the "public" about the results - take note:

FIGHT WEIGHT WAS NOT PUT INTO PLACE!!!!

According to my recalculation, between Kenny and me - there was a difference in weight of +/- 100 lbs. meaning: I won!

Needless to say, Ken Mitchell had the best time, followed by yours truly, and in third place by 2 seconds was Wesley Trussell. The other four members tried also but hey. After two races of ten minutes each, we were drained and in need of nourishment, so off to Famous 48.

Famous 48 is an awesome restaurant located in Gainey Village. The food is tasty, a good value and the service was perfect. Michele Juessen joined us for dinner. Everyone enjoyed their meal as we chatted and watched the Suns sweep the Nuggets. Perfect finish to a fun day.

No photos were taken so believe what you will.

TWILIGHT ADVENTURE AT THE SOUTHWEST WILDLIFE CONSERVATION CENTER

On June 11th, fifteen Scottsdale Corvette Club members traveled the dusty road south of Dynamite to the Southwest Wildlife Conservation Center. Laura Becker set up the event but was unable to attend because of an injury received in Hawaii. Who knew such an adventure was to await us right here in the heart of north Scottsdale? We were promptly met by our guides who were a combination of paid and volunteer members of the Center. They split us up into two groups for an intimate viewing of the wildlife.

Group waiting for the tour

The wildlife consists of two groups: those that can be released back to nature and those who must spend the rest of their life safe in captivity. The wildlife is limited to species native to Arizona. The endangered Gray Wolf is an important project of the Conservatory. There are very few Gray Wolves left in the Arizona-New Mexico-Mexico area. Some of the Gray Wolves at the Center have been used for breeding. The Center relies on donations and does not receive government money.

Luckily, Mark Bales was a member of this event and took some great pictures. We were allowed to interact with wildlife which will never be released back into nature for one reason or another. The biggest reason is if somebody decides to try to have a wild animal as a domesticated pet, it works for a while but then you get problems. Checkout the mountain lions, bear, javelina, mule deer, bobcats, and of course the giant tortoise who followed us around to be friendly.

Although groups are limited in size, I hope we can come back soon, and more members will be able to experience this jewel in the desert.

As the sun began to set, we headed towards our vehicles for a short ride to the Promenade at Scottsdale Rd and Frank Lloyd Wright Boulevard for dinner at Coopers Hawk Winery. Everyone remembered the restaurant as “that Mexican place.” Coopers Hawk Winery is new to Scottsdale and is an upscale restaurant. Of course, at Walter’s table they had contraptions to aerate the wine for their discriminating taste buds. Whatever, it looked like a hookah with no hoses. Another first for Scottsdale.

Members attending were, Mark and Kathy Bales, John and Glo Ketterl, Dick and Sue Kulczycki, Chuck and Sandy Weschler, Walter and Michele Juessen, Jerry and Pam Strimbu, Mike Reagan, and Mark and Stacey Chulew.

MINI ACTIVITIES

Trip to Tonto Natural Bridge State Park with Lunch at Old Country Inn in Pine, Arizona

Photos by Mark Bales and Terry Patricola

This is going to be a beautiful day, I said to myself as I pulled into the Target parking lot at 8:15 a.m. after picking up an Egg McMuffin and large black coffee. One by one, Corvettes of all shades appeared. In all there were ten Corvettes and 18 SCC Members. Everyone was enjoying the wonderful Fountain Hills morning but we were anxious to get to cool country. After a short orientation, we were off to Pine.

The road to Payson never disappoints. It affords us some of the best scenery that Arizona has to offer. And to think, it is right in our back yard. We beat the Memorial Day Weekend traffic to Payson. As it turned out, we were first in and first out. Winner!!

First stop, Old Country Inn for wood fired pizza and salads. It was all so yummy, and the service was awesome also. Most interesting pizza was the HAWAIIAN BBQ, which consisted of mozzarella, wood-fire-roasted pork, fresh pineapple, barbeque sauce, sweet soy sauce, cilantro-serrano, and pesto. Good conversations and cool breezes on the patio made it picture-perfect. With full bellies, we headed to the parking lot.

Second stop, Tonto Natural Bridge State Park. Mark Bales was our Club Photographer. His pictures tell the story. The natural travertine bridge is an awesome site viewed from the top or from the bottom. Our group decided to stay on the top this time, a wise choice given how high an altitude we were at and how much pizza was in our bellies.

Tonto Natural Bridge

Judy, Kathy and Mark

All I will say is my ride back to Scottsdale was much quicker than the ride up.

Attending Members were; Manny and Dawn Siprut, Mark and Kathy Bales, Frank and Pam Perno, Steve and Terry Patricola, Ed Luse and Jan Kellogg, Chuck and Sandy Weschler, Ron and Judy Myers, Al Banen and Marsha Cohen, Jerry Strimbu and Mark Chulew.

MINI ACTIVITY
DETROIT CONEY DOG SHOW AND SHINE AND DINE
June 26, 2021

Photos by Mark Bales; remarks by Dorinne Dobson

It was a plenty hot day in Scottsdale, Arizona, on June 26th, and Jim and I ran into trouble on the drive in from Wickenburg due to the closure of Loop 101 between 56th Street and Scottsdale Road (which we should have known about in advance, but somehow did not!). So we kinda missed the "show and shine" part of this event because by the time we got there, everyone had already sought out the shade and the cool mists from the misters on the patio at the Detroit Coney Grill. But as you will see, there were plenty of hot cars - that is to say, lots of gorgeous Corvettes - to see parked all around the restaurant, as evidenced by Mark Bales' excellent photographs.

Well, now you know we had plenty of Corvettes, and, of course, to go with all those beautiful cars, we had a plethora of beautiful people - around sixty total, which is a record for the Club in 2021, when we have kept things to small "mini events." Here are a couple of photos of the group. Following our social gathering, we had some scrumptious eats before calling it a day. Thanks to Mike and Donna Reagan for coming up with the idea for this event and bringing it off with such a fine showing.

THUMBNAIL BOOK REVIEWS

By Dorinne Dobson

Look Again* by Lisa Scottoline. I just read this for my book club's May selection. It had me on the edge of my seat a lot of the way through the book, laughing and crying and hoping and praying that everything would turn out all right. Lisa Scottoline has a way with words that will not disappoint you. Ellen Gleeson is the mother of a three-year-old adopted son, Will. She's a newspaper features reporter and one day happens to see a flyer entitled "Have You Seen This Child?" with a photo of a boy whose resemblance to Will is startling. Ellen feels compelled to look into the situation and the story takes off from there. You'll be rooting for Ellen and Will throughout the book. And believe me, the going gets pretty rough before the final resolution is reached. I heartily recommend this book, even though I'm not going to give you a synopsis of what happens. You'll have to read it to find out for yourself.

The Forgotten Room* by Karen White, Beatriz Williams and Lauren Willig. This is an intriguing book written by three separate authors about three separate main characters taking place in three time periods, the first being 1892-1893, the second 1920, and the third 1944. The women protagonists are all related to each other, and each has a love affair that would have been considered ill-advised at best during each time period. Actually in my own mind the star of the story is the house in which it all takes place - a Gilded Age mansion built in 1891 for the Pratt family in Manhattan's Upper East Side with an unbelievably beautiful attic room at the very top of the mansion with a domed glass ceiling and beautiful glass walls affording an exceptional view of Manhattan. This is a book to savor, and I enjoyed every moment of reading it. I hope you will enjoy it as well.

The Girl from Berlin* by Ronald H. Balson. This is an excellent historical novel about an aspect of World War II that I had not heard a lot about. In the 1930's in Germany and all over Europe, all the large cities had professional orchestras and employed many Jewish musical prodigies. When the Nazis starting purging the Jewish population, many of these musicians were spared in the interest of preserving the integrity of the orchestras' performances. Ada Baumgarten was one of these prodigies. Her father was concertmaster of the Berlin Philharmonic, and he taught Ada to play the violin, at which she excelled as a student, as well as a professional musician. If you have read any of Ronald Balson's books, you know he is a master at delivering a profound and engaging story and holding your interest until the last note of the story has been struck. There are two aspects of this novel - one told as Ada's story of her life, and the other taking place in 2017 when a large corporation is trying to take ownership of an Italian vineyard away from Ada's daughter. I can recommend this as a very enjoyable book to read and learn about a slightly different aspect of the world in the 1930's and 1940's during the buildup to and the time of the Second World War.

Have You Seen Luis Velez?* by Catherine Ryan Hyde. Raymond is a teenage boy who is falling through the cracks. His parents divorced so now he lives with his mother and his stepfather and three younger half-sisters, and spends every other weekend with his father whose wife leaves when Raymond arrives. At school he has no friends. He feeds a stray cat and feels like a loser. One day a blind woman who lives in his building cautiously asks him "Have you see Luis Velez?" I really found this to be a profound story in that Raymond, who is shy but an excellent student and a very smart young man, takes on the responsibility of walking Millie, his blind elderly neighbor, to the bank and the store, and attempts to find out what happened to her friend, Luis Velez, who kindly took Millie under his wing in the same manner until he suddenly stopped coming around. This is not a long or complicated story, but one that will tug at your heartstrings and give you faith in the resiliency of the human spirit.

These Tangled Vines* by Julianne Maclean. If you love Tuscany and Italian wine with a little romance thrown in, this might just be the book for you. The story is told in two different storylines, one by Lillian Bell in 1986 and the other by her daughter, Fiona Bell, in 2017. You will love the descriptions of Tuscany and the wines made at the Maurizio Winery. You may even fall a little in love with Anton, the dashing Italian winemaker at Maurizio, who hires Lillian as a guide for American tourists visiting the winery. There's a little mystery, a little romance, some sibling rivalry, all combining to make a very enjoyable reading experience.

Eight Hundred Grapes* by Laura Dave. I couldn't put this book down. This is the second book I've read by Laura Dave, and I've put all of her books on my "to be read" list because she's definitely got a "way with words." This story takes place in Sonoma County, California, and is about a winemaker and his family. I loved the way the author based the story on the word "synchronization" - both as it relates to the art of winemaking and as it relates to building a life with the one you love. This even flows through to "desynchronization" - times when everything in one's love life goes wrong as well as to unforeseeable events such as weather, temperatures, soil conditions, pests, all the things that can go wrong when growing grapes for wine-making. I happen to like wine and wine tastings and learning about it - so the book had a certain appeal to me, the wine lover. But even if you don't love wine, there's plenty of drama, romance, a few surprises and riffs - in short, enough of everything you need to make you want to keep reading a book till you've reached the very end.

This Tender Land* by William Kent Krueger. OMG I loved this book! What a story of two orphaned brothers in 1932 during the Depression, placed in a school for Native American orphans in Minnesota because there was no other place to put two orphan boys at that time. From canoeing down the Minnesota River, to the homeless villages along the way, to riding the rails in empty boxcars, it reminded me of my childhood reading of Tom Sawyer, Huckleberry Finn and Rebecca of Sunnybrook Farm. The story is gripping and the telling of it is extraordinary. If you have not already read this book, you are in for an adventure in middle America in the early 1930's.

The Magician* by Colm Toibin. Another piece of historical fiction, this book is a fictional biography of the prolific German author, Thomas Mann. Among Mann's most well-known books are Buddenbrooks and The Magic Mountain, for which he was awarded the Nobel prize in literature in 1929, and Death in Venice. Mann was born in 1875 in Lubeck, Germany. He began his writing career as a young man, publishing his first short story in 1898. This book covers most of Thomas Mann's eighty years, and features his family life from the time he marries his remarkable wife, Katia, through the births of their six children, and the European war years of the First and Second World Wars, during which the Mann family lived in Switzerland, then emigrated to the United States where they lived in New Jersey and California. The author skillfully causes the reader to become fascinated with the Magician, as Mann's children called him initially because of tricks he played on them as kids, but the name stuck and they continued to refer to him as the Magician throughout his life. This is a very enjoyable look at a famous author's life. I was fortunate to receive an Advance Reader's Edition of the book which will be released to the public on September 7, 2021.

Mistress of the Ritz* by Melanie Benjamin. Another novel of World War II. Another historical novel. You might say, oh, no, not again! But maybe not in this case because Melanie Benjamin has written a very human story about the Nazi occupation of France during the Second World War, and it all takes place at the elegant Ritz Hotel in Paris. Blanche, the protagonist, is a beautiful blond American woman who aspires to be a movie actress and travels to Europe with a friend and her current lover on the promise of a movie to be filmed in Egypt. On their stopover in Paris, Blanche meets Claude Auzello, a suave Frenchman, the assistant manager of the Ritz Hotel, who sweeps her off her feet, marries her, and upon his promotion, she becomes the "Mistress of the Ritz." Here again is another novel in which a building, the auspicious Ritz Hotel, plays such an important role that even the author has described it as the third major character in the novel. There is some humor in the characters, some romance in the story, and a lot of history in the circumstances in which the story takes place. I enjoyed reading this book and hope you too will enjoy reading it.

Happy reading!
